OUR MISSION

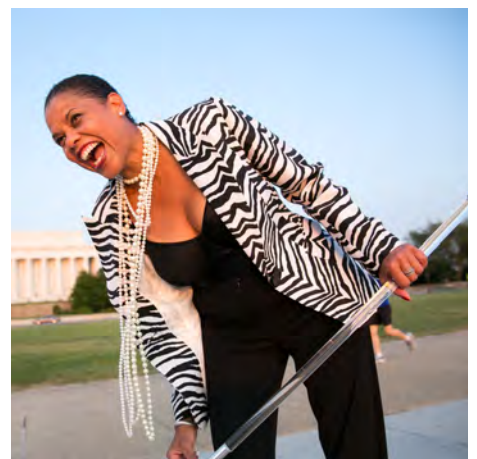

To reshape what disability looks like by promoting Black and Brown women and girls with physical disabilities throughout various media platforms. The goal of The Divas With Disabilities Project (DWD) is to support Black and Brown women with physical disabilities, by ensuring our diverse identities are fostered within inclusive sources of mass media and popular culture, and our images are not erased from American history.

FOUNDER

DONNA WALTON, EdD

As founder of the DWD, Dr. Donna Walton shares the historical underpinnings of black women with disabilities being properly represented, especially in the current media climate.

Donna has made it her life mission to create an unprecedented impact for black women and Brown women with physical disabilities and foster as a hub for thoughtful discussion on issues, self-love, and showing up, unapologetically in all forms of media.
